Genetics and Microscopes

A Channeled Message on the Nature of Reality and Consciousness (February 26, 1999)

OVERVIEW

This 37-minute channeled communication explores profound spiritual and philosophical concepts about the nature of existence, genetic creation, consciousness, and humanity's purpose. The entities use the metaphor of microscopes and genetics to explain how they exist on invisible planes of reality, parallel to human existence. They address fundamental questions about creation, death, identity, and spiritual evolution.

CORE CONCEPTS & MAJOR THEMES

1. Invisible Beings and the Microscope Metaphor
The entities explain they exist at levels invisible to the naked human eye, much like genes. Were humans to possess the correct microscopes, they could literally see these beings. They are structured and real but exist at a frequency/scale beyond normal human perception. The makeup of humankind reflects their presence.

2. Coexistence and Mirror Image
Humans and these non-physical beings are fundamentally one and the same. When the entities look into the 'inner light' of humans, they see their mirror image. The frequencies humans expand are their frequencies. The fluidity and energy factors are shared. There is a coexistence that is 'one and the same'—an interspersing of consciousness and being.

3. What Remains After Death
When the physical body ceases and the 'fragrance' or 'soul essence' dissipates from the physical plane, the individual is absorbed back into the spectrum from which they originated. The single identity ceases to exist as an individual—they become absorbed into a larger whole. The 'you' as a distinct entity is no more.

4. Genetic Manifestation and Creation
The beings address how genetic makeup manifests. Life itself is generated through a process where the intangible becomes tangible. What appears from 'nowhere' is actually energy being translated from one frequency of light to another. The creative process involves absorption from different light frequencies, resulting in physical manifestation.

5. The Tangible and Intangible Exchange
Central to their message is the principle that what is intangible becomes tangible, and vice versa.

Physical matter is condensed spiritual/energetic essence. When energy is 'absorbed in different light,' it changes its nature. This process underlies all creation and manifestation.

6. Selective Access to Knowledge
The beings emphasize they only provide deep spiritual knowledge to those truly capable of understanding it. Many who receive such knowledge are 'destroyed' by it because they cannot comprehend its fullness. Better to teach a few who can understand than many who cannot. Only those who have 'come forward in their thinking' can access the outer perimeters.

7. Human Purpose and Individual Response
Humanity's true purpose is not in some predetermined spiritual image, but rather in how each individual reacts to what has been placed before them. Purpose emerges from personal choice, response, and the quality of consciousness brought to each situation. Spiritual development is about individual agency.

8. Multiple Planes and Perimeters
Reality consists of multiple dimensional planes or 'perimeters'—different regions of existence with varying degrees of refinement and consciousness. The physical world, the spirit world, and these beings' plane are three distinct regions, each with different vibrational qualities and accessibility.

9. The Nature of Thought and Manifestation
Thought is a tangible force in non-physical dimensions. Pure thoughts create corresponding results. The mind acts as an interface between the material and spiritual worlds. What appears as random is actually the translation of thought into physical reality.

10. Learning Through Partnership
The entities emphasize they are learning from humans even as they teach. The relationship is reciprocal. They 'remember' previous encounters and conversations, suggesting ongoing evolution and deepening understanding on both sides.

COMMUNICATION OBSERVATIONS

Channeling Challenges: The entities mention difficulty with the communication channel due to heat in the room, interference from other thoughts/entities creating 'echoes,' and coordination problems. They liken this to a radio picking up multiple signals—they try to be the 'main stem' but tributaries (other voices/thoughts) intrude.

Unusual Grammar & Language: The entities use non-standard English phrasing and grammar, which they acknowledge with humor. They explain they use unusual language to 'make you smile' but the meaning is clear to those who understand.

Collective vs. Individual Channeling: Multiple entities and intermediaries appear to be involved, creating overlapping voices and perspectives. This accounts for the disjointed nature of some passages.

Automatic Transmission: Parts of the message are 'automatic'—triggered by certain words or concepts, suggesting a semi-conscious or automatic component to the channeling process.

KEY PHILOSOPHICAL INSIGHTS

All is Connected: The boundaries between physical and non-physical, material and spiritual, tangible and intangible are permeable and fluid. What appears separate is fundamentally unified.

Consciousness as Primary: Consciousness and thought are primary; physical reality is secondary. The universe is fundamentally mental/energetic, with matter being crystallized consciousness.

Evolution Through Understanding: Spiritual progress comes through understanding one's true nature and expanding consciousness. Not everyone is ready for such knowledge, and that is accepted.

Purpose Through Participation: Humans co-create their reality through their responses, choices, and the quality of consciousness they bring to existence. Meaning emerges from participation, not from external assignment.

Death as Reabsorption: Physical death is not an ending but a returning—the individual consciousness dissolves back into the greater whole from which it emerged. Individual identity is temporary; the eternal is the larger spectrum.

KEY TAKEAWAY

This message presents a radical reframing of human identity and reality. Humans are not isolated beings in a purely material universe but conscious manifestations of non-physical entities existing at scales and frequencies invisible to ordinary perception. All of reality—from genetics to consciousness to death—is a continuous play of energy shifting between tangible and intangible states. Spiritual growth is about recognizing one's true nature and the interconnected nature of all existence. Knowledge of these truths is reserved for those prepared to receive it, and individual purpose emerges through how one responds to the challenges and opportunities placed before them. The universe is fundamentally unified, conscious, and purposeful, not accidental or random.
